TO THE SENIORS

For your attainments at Galesburg High School we offer you sincere congratulations, justly deserved for work performed faithfully and well. At the same time it is with a twinge of regret that we reluctantly yield to the inevitable separation of graduation.

Truthfully we shall miss you, and yet, we envy you. There is no statement more false than that which might lead you to believe that by your graduation you have finished your education. You are merely continuing that growth and development which thus far has constantly attended you. Whatever you may have learned of the value of faithful, dependable work; of the satisfaction of true friendship; of loyal co-operation; of happiness in the service of others will stand you in good stead. The future is waiting to challenge and intrigue you. Its problems are yet to be solved, its history is still to be written and its beauty is still undiscovered.

As you go forth to meet this challenge of the future, it is our wish that each one of you may be dedicated to the high ideals and purposes which will bring you real and abiding happiness and success.

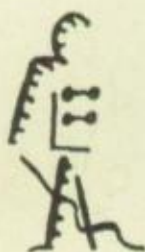

Margaret Cox

AN APPRECIATION

To the classes of former years you owe much, for they established the ideals and traditions of Galesburg High School as you found them. For you, these have been both a heritage and a trust. Your record of the past four years in leadership, scholarship, athletics, dramatics, debate and other school activities proves that you have been faithful to that trust. Classes of the years to come will benefit much in striving to emulate the spirit of the class of nineteen thirty-two.

TO MISS LIND

In appreciation of one whose long and faithful service to the Galesburg High School inspires the expression of this earnest tribute.

Miss Lind, to you I dedicate
Too late this simple little verse
Because the joy of life was yours,
Because the patient wisdom, force
Of character, and personality
Which I essayed to realize,
You taught through your philosophy.

Mere texts were not enough for you,
But through your cultivated mind,
You trained and taught the student heart
The high ideals of all mankind.
By skillful versatility
You sowed the seeds of character
And so enriched humanity.

MARIAN RUTH BROWN, '32.

A Plea to Teachers

*Hark! See down the street
With swinging stride they go,
Heads erect and eyes alert;
They make a splendid show.*

*Thousands of students on parade,
Thousands of citizens being made.
Students today—tomorrow's men,
Following today—leading then.*

*Luring visions and strong ideals
Before them ever lead;
Love of life and adventure wide,
Plant in them a seed.*

*A desire to do, a hope to be,
A wish to go on and on;
With hopeful hearts they set their eyes
Afar to the glorious sun.*

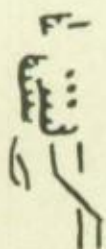

*Thousands of students on parade,
Thousands of citizens being made.
Students today—tomorrow's men,
Following today—leading then.*

*A thoughtful brain and a helping hand,
A heart with purpose clear,
A body strong a spirit true
These things may they hold dear.*

*Teach them well and lead them right
Ye teachers of today;
Set for them a distant goal
For these students of today.*

*Thousands of students on parade,
Thousands of citizens being made.
Students today, tomorrow's men,
Teach well today the leaders then.*

BOOK II

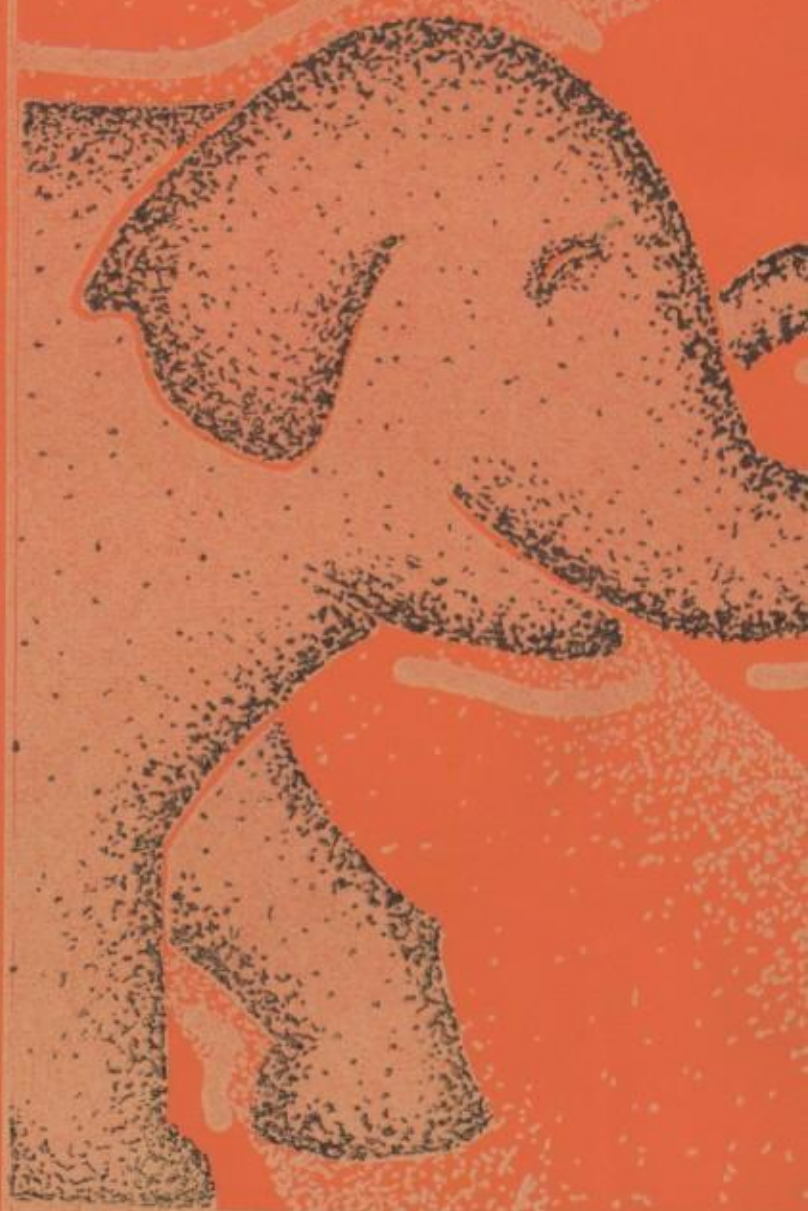

CLASSMEN

CHARLOTTE GUSTAFSON

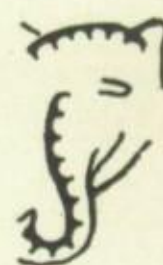

The Senior Class

The members of the class of 1932 have come to the close of their circus performance. They have participated in their last ring parade and circus feature. They have taken their last test and made their last bow in this circus. They have gathered their many honors and have lived up to them nobly.

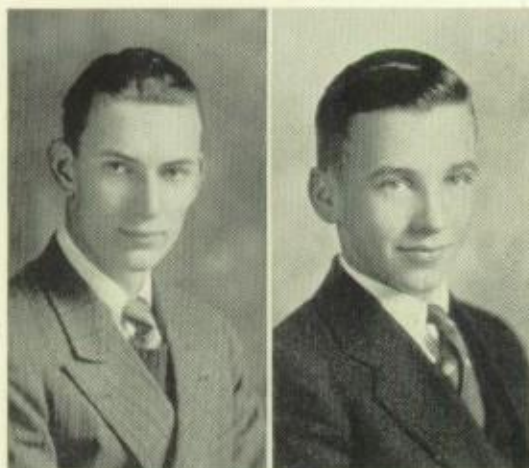

Roger Shaw was chosen the baton whirler to watch over their destiny. As his assistants the class picked William Hanlon, Robert Twyman, and Rollin Terpening. The Senior class act was guided by the capable leadership of Mr. Crawford, the owner.

The last act in the performance contained the ever popular Senior Day and Senior party. The Senior play and assembly were followed by the grand finale—commencement. Francis Paul acted as Junior ring master and Roger Shaw delivered the ring announcement in behalf of his class.

After all, it is not what they have learned, nor what they have accomplished, in the way of activities and honors, that makes this class glad they have been together four years in this big circus family. It is the friends they have made, the contacts they have had with the circus officials, the knowledge they have gained of themselves, and above all, the souvenirs they will carry away—these are the things that make four years in the circus the most vivid memory in the life of any circus graduate.

I Wonder

Little puddles
 Make little streams;
 Small streams
 Make great rivers;
 Great rivers
 Make mighty seas.

I wonder,
 Does a puddle know
 Its destiny?

Cheerleaders and Managers

The cheerleaders are pictured above. Throughout the year they led the lusty cheers of the student body in a very successful manner.

Below are the four students who managed the four sports. They should be complimented on their fine work during the sport seasons.

"Bob" McLaughlin, LaVerne Klemm, "Bob" McCornack, Albert Wenstrom

Football

The first venture in the football field was with Burlington. Galesburg won by a score of 26-6. Through a stubborn and stable line a powerful backfield plunged and battled, and the results of this game pointed the way to a successful season.

East Moline journeyed to Galesburg for the next struggle which ended in an 18-7 score with Galesburg on the top side. This tilt was the initial struggle toward a Big Nine title.

The old rival, Canton, was conquered by a score of 19-0 for a second Big Nine victory. A hard-hitting line and a swift backfield made possible this win.

The first loss of the season was handed to G. H. S. by Moline through a 14-0 score. Though this was a Big Nine defeat, it did not put Galesburg out of the race.

As a benefit to charity, Rock Island was played. It was a thrilling game which ended in a final score of 19-8 in favor of Galesburg. This game showed what was meant by the expression, "Fighting Tigers", and what they could do.

A victory of 27-0 over Quincy again indicated Galesburg's power to win. Though the score does not indicate it, the game was hard-fought.

This time, Galesburg battled Macomb for a 28-6 win. The game was characterized by clever ball playing on the part of the backfield.

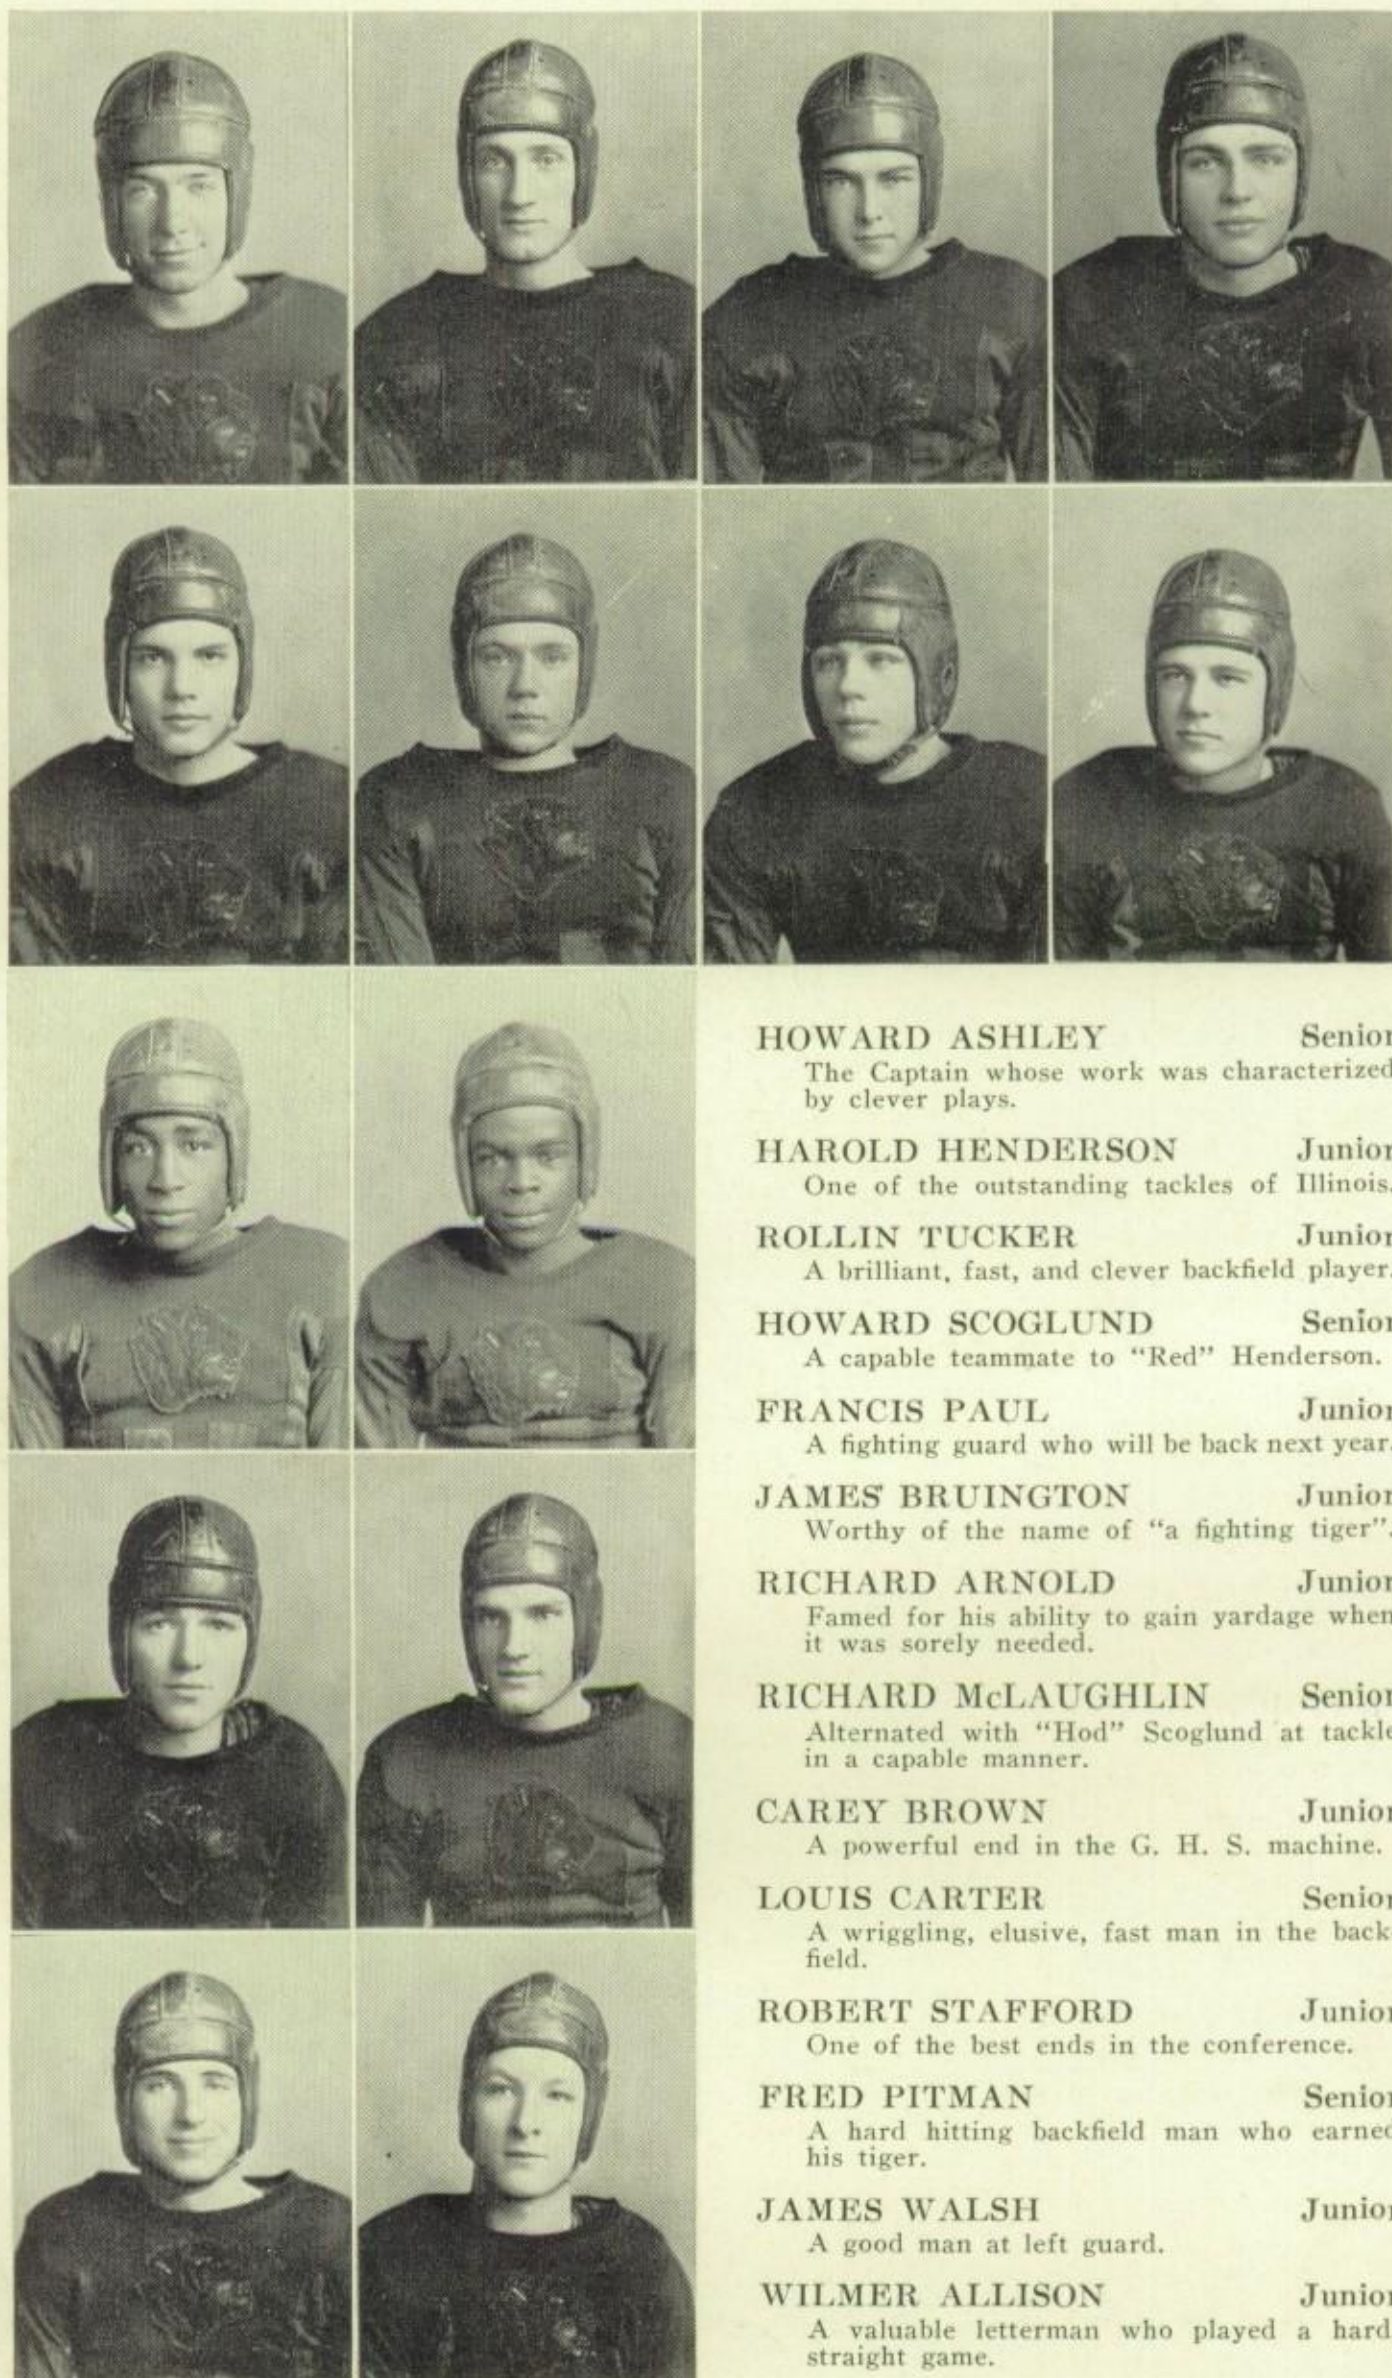

The next game was with Kewanee Boilermakers. It resulted in a scoreless tie. The game was extremely close with both teams evenly matched for strength. Kewanee was the most dangerous team in the conference, with the possible exception of Monmouth. Galesburg tied Kewanee which is a notable fact.

Our last home game of the year was with Geneseo in a conference tilt. The Tigers walked away from Geneseo by a score of 46-0. Although the score seems uninteresting the game was not so. It took clever ball playing and good blocking to win this game and the team featured both.

Galesburg lost her final game to Monmouth by a score of 19-0. Inches barred G. H. S. from a touchdown during the first quarter. A stone-wall line halted our line advances. A second defense knocked down our passes. Not until after one of the most difficult contests had been fought did Galesburg consent to the loss. Nelson, Ashley, Arnold, and Henderson gathered most of the honors of the game.

Basketball Letter Men

"DON" ROBINSON was the fastest forward on a fast team. An ideal basketball player.

ROLLIN TUCKER was a small player whose skill at faking will long be remembered by G. H. S.

"BARNEY" CRANDELL was our tall center who had the ability to tip in baskets to such an extent that he was the second highest scorer.

"PETE" MITCHELL was a guard who knew how to play and how to captain basketball. Pete captained most of our Big Nine games.

JOE BURFORD was the other guard of the second semester whose dribbling was a marvel and a great factor in winning games.

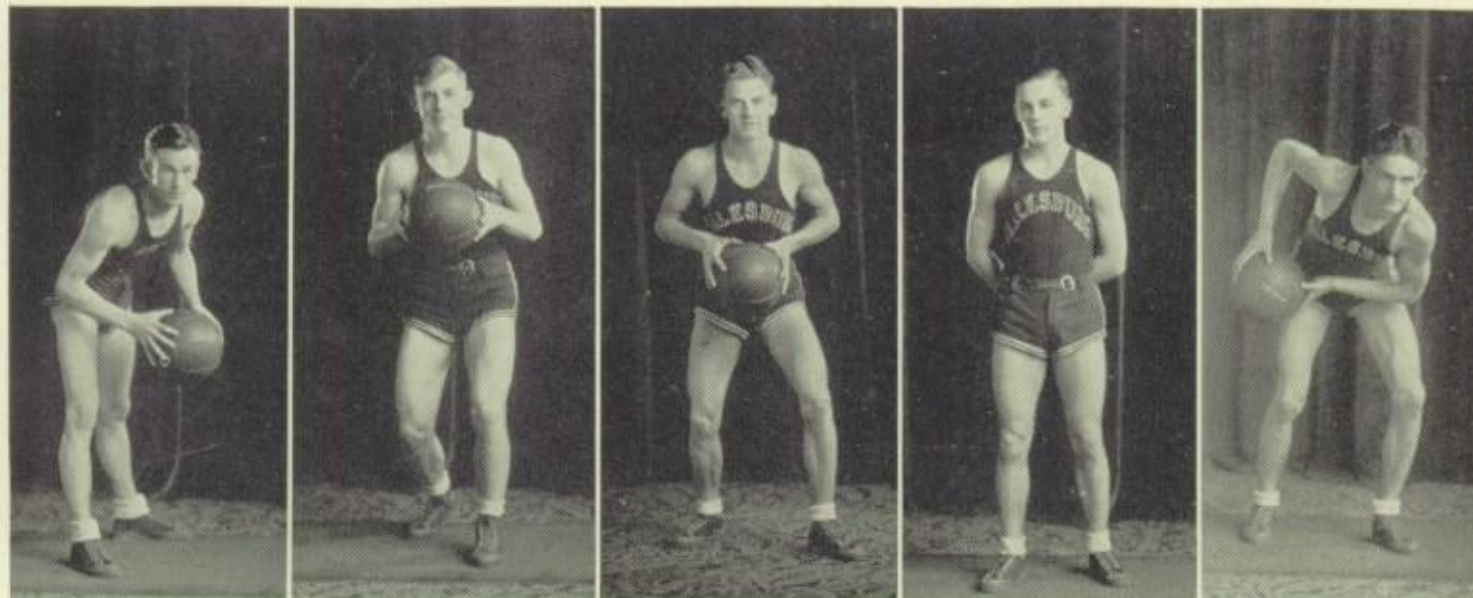

"GUSSIE" DUTTON was the tiny forward who nobly took Robinson's position during the tournament.

"DELBIE" NELSON was an energetic player full of fight.

FRED NARR was that curly headed, good looking, fighting guard who left us at the first semester.

"DICK" ARNOLD was a wary guard who took Narr's position in a steady, sure manner.

"SONNY" MYERS was a guard whose steady playing and clever head work made him known as a good basketball player.

Sitting: P. Lacky, L. Tanner, J. Mitchell, K. Sauter.

Basketball Season

Coach Phillips should be praised for the year's basketball success. With only three letter men back, he developed a championship team. His "Indiana Defense" improved over that of last year. Our scoring capacity was low this year because of the team's smallness. It is due to Mr. Phillips that Galesburg is considered when champions are mentioned. G. H. S. won the Big Nine this year for the second consecutive time; the score card showed no defeats. The team proved themselves best in the district and second best in the section. Following is a summary of the basketball season:

ROWEN ALDRICH.....	Treasurer	WILLIAM HINCKLEY

Purpose: To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community, high standards of Christian character.

The activity of the Galesburg Hi-Y club has increased greatly during the year. Its members have enjoyed a worthwhile season in the activities of the school.

The annual Coldbrook meeting, a Mixer, a swimming party at the Y. M. C. A., a meeting and induction in Toulon, and a party at Lake Storey were among the events of the year. Delegates were sent to the Older Boys' Conference at Decatur, and aid was given to the Empty Stocking Club as additional activities of the year.

Purpose: To promote Christian Standards of living in the school and community.

Just as last year, interesting and varied courses in Bible Study and Fine Arts were offered to Junior and Senior girls respectively.

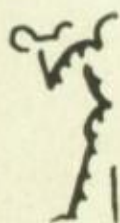

Dressing dolls for the poor children of the city was the League's way of helping the Empty Stocking Club.

The "Friendship" banquet was held May 3, in the First Baptist Church, with Dr. Ross as the principal speaker.

A novel introduction of this year was the adoption of a pin as the insignia of the League.

Advisory Council

Selling activity tickets, getting subscriptions for the REFLECTOR and the Budget, inspiring students to go to the District Basketball tournament (and, incidentally, buying a season ticket) were among the duties faithfully performed by the student advisory council.

Not only these more mercenary things were accomplished, but a closer relationship between the faculty group and the students was effected by this organization of students. As in previous years, one representative was chosen from each advisory group. Below their names and advisories are listed:

Events of 500,000 A. D.

Last week an archaeologist, excavating in the newly discovered ruins of a once mighty city called "Galesburg", found an old leather-bound book in the shambles of a large building. A translator inspected it and declared the book was a record of a "Club", for the title said "Lincoln Debating Club".

The first page was headed "Lincolns sweep inter-club debates". Those words must have been fairly important as the letters were very large. Succeeding pages had on them "Rail-Splitters Split Bug-Chasers, 7-6", and "Fall Party", with many exclamation marks after it, also "Annual Banquet", with two strange words near it "Great Feed". "First in Grade Averages", was a title on one page. Apparently the "Lincolns" were good scholars. A picture labeled "The Ray of Reason," showed an old man pointing a box at a companion. "Beautiful swimming trophy won by Lincolns," gave evidence of their supremacy at sea. "Second in basketball tourney", indicated that they had taken honors in another game.

That small club of the great "steel" age must have truly had a year of glory in "1932".

A Banquet in 1982

The readers of the New York Sun noticed this item on the society page just recently. "Famous Club Has Reunion; Well-Known Journalist is Toast-Mistress."

"In the beautiful banquet room of the Ritz, Miss Helen Scharfenberg, managing editor of the New York Times, presided at the fiftieth reunion banquet of the Elizabethan Literary Society. A most enjoyable program was given.

"The toast-mistress introduced the first speaker whose topic was 'The Picnics of 1932'. In a slightly age-weakened voice, Pauline Torley spoke, recalling to the minds of the listeners the fine picnicing days of '32. 'But invariably it rained adding such a delightful touch to the occasion,' she said.

"Miss Lorraine Graham talked upon the assemblies performed in '32. She gave a humorous imitation of the Doctor, in their play entitled, 'The Ray of Reason'. 'Her First Assignment' was cleverly commented upon.

"Miss Georgia Coffman next spoke on 'The Parties in the Good Old Days'. 'The spring party was an elegant affair carrying out the Arabian theme', with quantities of desert sand she pointed out.

"After a stirring rendition of 'Dear Old Galesburg High School', the Elizabethans departed for their widely scattered walks of life."

Why the Franklins are Famous

In the first place, we're women-haters, all of us. (Except "Iggy" Cooley and Dale Patchett.) We're good at golf, too. Especially "Blimp" Wake. Rex Holcomb, it will be remembered is tied for the tree sitting championship of Galesburg. In chemistry Paul Gans upholds our standard. Who could forget "Hippo" Hieronymus' flying figure on ice skates, and "Jonesy's" equally winged feet, although with roller skates? (What a come-down!) Pruett's midnight excursions must not be neglected in a resume of our doings. Gene White's diving ability is something everyone should know about. (We're not stringing you either.) "Onion" Runyan and "Eddie" Hinchliff are the proud possessors of the well-known one-cylinder and two-cylinder, respectively. "Bill" Gardner spends his summers profitably writing letters. "Bob" Terpening is noted for the speeches he makes when he retires from an office, especially the treasurer's. "Del" Nelson's fiery locks have been always seen in the thickest of athletic encounters as well as with Lloyd Hawkinson in vocal endeavors. Grades have always been the Franklins forte (anyway nobody can kick about Ralph Linroth's or "Bill" Swanson's).

Saluta, the Seer, Speaks

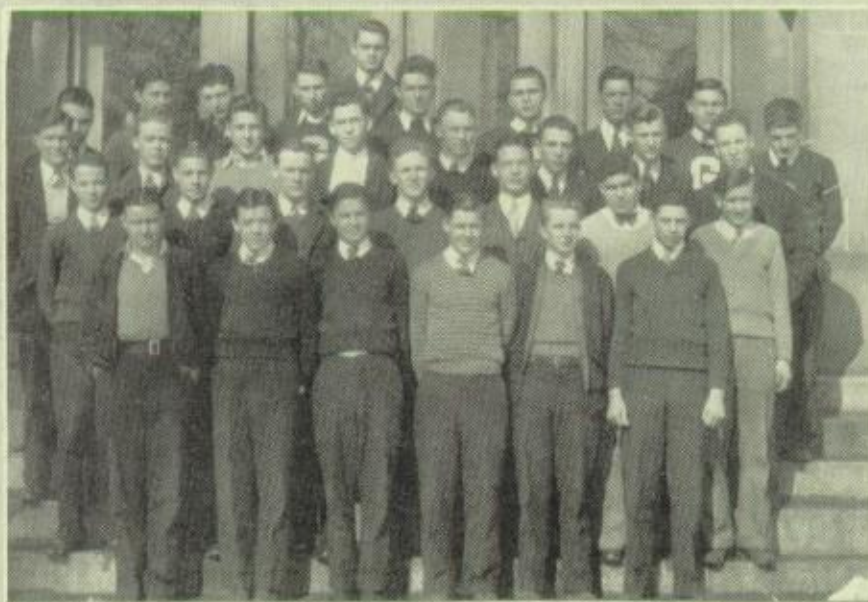

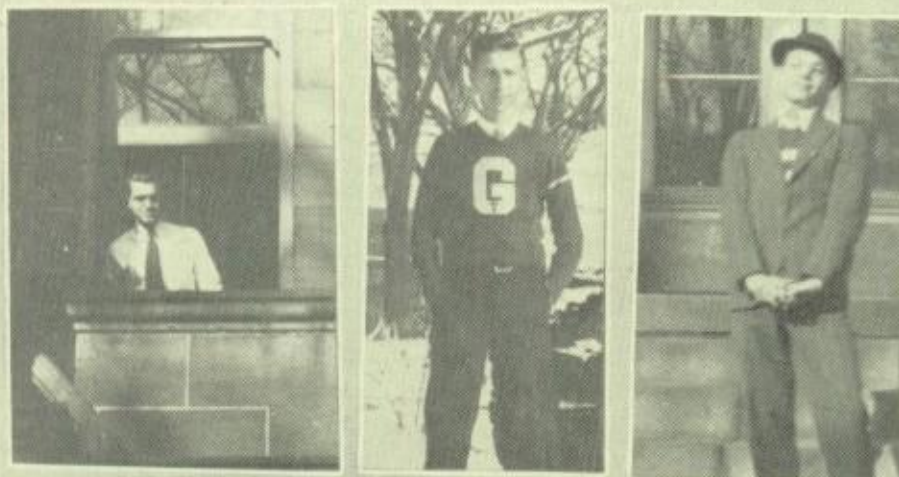

While strolling about the circus grounds, I discovered the tent of Saluta the Seer. Having the composition of this article in mind, I entered, and asked that she tell me about the Girls' Science Club. Below I quote her story.

"To keep club customs and traditions there were three 'sister sets' in G. S. C., namely 'Nan' and 'El' Wallace, Pauline and Edna Mary Springer, and Ruby and Lillian Mecum. There were also two LaVonnas, two Ruths and three Marions, respectively surnamed Sprout, Law, Anderson, Stegall, Brown, Root, and Bodson, not to mention Margarets Carlson, Holmes, and Pierson, and Frances Houck and Newkirk. Wilma Bank's big car and Helen Hynes' pretty fur coat were the pride of the club. To play the piano like Lorraine Craver, orate like Lois Retherford, read like Phyllis Williams, and smile like Gladys Chinn were the ambitions of every other club member. Quiet Marguerite Travis and laughing Margaret Carlson were the contrasts of the club. Okle Watts and Grace Pitman couldn't be in club meeting very often but they were loyal. Dorothy Dunn, Helen Griffith, Katherine Lehman, Edna Anderson and Vera Darnell have time yet to do notable things."

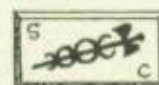

"But you've told me very little about the seniors," I objected.

"What do you want for a dime?" asked Saluta scornfully.

Smooth Say- ings of the Scientists

Francis Holst and Max Kennedy, two members of the Boys' Science Club, collaborated on the invention of a long heralded machine to pick the conversation of long ago out of the air. Being most interested in their worthy club fellows, they tuned their machine in on Mr. Garst's room, where their club meetings were held. The following series of unrelated phrases were recorded:

"According to me, not Hoyle"—"Hod" Johnson; "Won't somebody make a motion?"—"Hod" Scoglund; "Careful, I'm delicate"—Vencel Stevens; "Mighty oaks from acorns grow"—"Dick" Stearns; "Feaven's sakes!"—"Pete" Mitchell; "I'm not nertz, it's just my line"—Max Stewart; "'Member, silence is golden"—F. Erickson; "I should have been a girl"—"Bud" Ericson; "This is early for me"—"Bob" Marshall; "Oh, to be a woman hater!"—"Chuck" Barlow; "Being a milkman isn't so hot"—Fred Pitman; "The valiant never taste of death but once"—"Larry" Horn; "I wanna be like Tarzan"—"Bob" Stafford; "Me'n Dempsey's gonna tangle!"—Clarence Bowles; etc., etc.

And so on and on goes the machine. Its value to science has not yet been decided, but anyway, it's very interesting. It will pick up more smooth sayings next year perhaps. So long until then!

Reminiscence in 1975

Who would ever guess that Frances Richardson, dressed in a pair of white, bow-legged "ducks", and middy blouse, once sang in a chorus for the benefit of the Tubercular Association? Or that Margaret Reese at one time planned to be a professional tennis court roller?

Pearl Danielson and Jeanette Higgins have had their ups and downs, too—when they rode over a bumpy road on the collapsible top of "Marge" Sargeant's Essex. Jeanne Scott, always ready to help in an emergency, relieved the situation by reading and singing the song about a woodchuck.

More than once that clever young Gerda Wainwright has saved the day with a remark diverting attention from Louise Hallberg's "Oh Hel-up" when that famous exclamation has been misunderstood.

Though 'tis time for sad farewells, do you recognize these Annies by their expressions of greeting—"Cheerio, old pal!" Yes, it was "Babe" Tanning. See if you can guess who says "Hi there, honey." I admit that's hard, but as a suggestion, the author is a senior, an ex-president of the A. L. S., and she spent the second semester of the year in Champaign. "Hi, everybody!" That's the salutation of the little lady who made "Toodle-oo—" the byword of parting. Zelma Hillier, in other words. Toodle-oo, everybody!

Around the Halls

"Hi Eileen!" I explained to my visitor that this little senior girl to whom I had just spoken was a member of the P. L. S. and the life of the club. I was so busy talking that I ran right into Helen Krohn. "Pardon me," I said, but she had already smilingly forgiven me and was off.

A little ahead of me I saw a girl carrying a large box. "That's Carolyn Eskridge. I bet that box contains her costume for 'Cabbages'". Down by the office was Grace Putnam posting the club program. "We've always had good programs while she's been vice-president", I said.

Then I saw another Prokorama, Jane Waggoner, asking Mildred Peterson what refreshments she thought should be served at the "Mother's Tea". Thinking of refreshments reminded me of the wiener roast at Lake Bracken.

In front of me Elizabeth Metz was walking sedately through the halls looking a great deal different than at the Halloween party where she won the prize for being dressed the funniest.

Just as the bell was ringing I couldn't resist the temptation to point out Marian Walker as our wonderful piano player but I didn't dare to say anymore for the eye of the teacher was upon me.

With the Ag. Club

Bang. . . ! the president's gavel struck the desk and the Agriculture Club began another successful year. At the first meeting, Dale Clay, Donald Bayless, Kenneth Alexander, Philip Alexander, Joe Mitchell and John Maxwell became members to fill the gaps left in the ranks by graduation.

We didn't know there were any girls in the Agriculture Club but we realized our mistake in the pay assembly, "Vendue". Who would have known that Rollin Adcock and Leroy Scott could change from one gender to another so well?

The fall party was held on Friday the thirteenth, but the dreamy music of a good orchestra gently put all evil and malignant spirits to sleep. Remember the dance Dale Clay had with little Jean Peterson? Didn't it remind you of Mutt and Jeff?

Just as the pins were being awarded to the judging team at the Father and Son Banquet, Paul Gustafson became very thirsty. He nearly drove one of the waitresses frantic carrying water to him. Perhaps the salt that Johnnie Wilson put in Paul's coffee had something to do with it.

Harlan Terpening came out of his bachelor retirement leading a blushing damsel to the spring party and joined in the merry-making.

Thus the Agriculture Club closed its most successful year.

The Laurian's Mirror

Halt—! Let us pause and take a glimpse at the Laurians. With a membership of forty enthusiastic girls and an encouraging advisor, the society has had a successful year.

Listen folks! It is a secret, so don't tell anyone. Virginia Highlander and Jean Jackson are to assist Mr. Gillespie in coaching the football team next year.

You'd never dream that "sophies" could eat as many wieners as did June Albee, Lenora Tilly and Florence Lithander at the wiener roast. Size doesn't always gauge capacity?

What? Were you talking about debate teams? Well we certainly had one. Its members were Virginia Highlander, and Ava Townsend of the affirmative, and Ruth Sanderson, and Bernice Cochran of the negative.

If silence were golden Marjabelle Essex, Roxie Lithander and Elizabeth Gossage would be millionaires.

Can't Dorothy Wright play the piano? Remember the orchestra that played for our dance practices?

And Mary Hand certainly made a success of our Mother's Tea.

Oh Boy! Didn't we have fun at the Moon Light Dance? Not many of us will forget that party.

Last but not least came our senior banquet, the climax of the year.

The Budget

To make a high school a circus is not all fun and play. Real work goes into the publication of a good school paper.

This year's Budget staff, composed of the reporters, the typists, and the mechanical staff, under the capable leadership of Roger Shaw and Ethel Margaret Gillmor as editors, and Stuart Peterson as business manager, worked hard and successfully in putting out the Budget. To their ever helpful advisors they owe much of their success.

It has been the endeavor of the staff to publish a true organ of Galesburg High School. The Budget has tried to recount in their true light the school's ever progressing activities, to encourage greater efforts in the line of scholastic achievement, and to make Galesburg High School a friendly school, within her own walls, and with schools and people of surrounding localities. The Budget staff hopes that by its efforts it has done a little to make Galesburg High School a happier and better place.

The Reflector

If you like this circus yearbook, if you appreciate the effort required to put it out, and the handicaps under which every staff, regardless of its time, has had to work, then this page need bring no message to you, except to remind you that the REFLECTOR staff hopes that you will value this, the result of their efforts, as a prize to be treasured always, like the glamorous memory of your first circus. Value it because it is "your" yearbook. You helped make it. Your picture is in it. Your literary efforts are here. It's your "reflector" of school and classmates.

To the subscribing student body, to the office force, to the student councilmen, to the merchants of the city, to the advisors, and to everyone that helped in the publication of this book, the staff is indebted. Perhaps as their way of putting their thanks, the staff says, like the circus ring-master, "We hope you like it."

Chorus

Miss Ross very capably directed the chorus through another successful season. Among the events at which the group assisted during the year were the Armistice Day assembly, City Parent Teachers' Association meeting, Mothers' Circle of the Fresh Air School, the George Washington program and the Girls' Service League banquet. Marian Walker and Helen Hogan were the accompanists.

The following chorus members were not in the picture: Margaret M. Peterson, Phoebe Bowling, Edith Hale, May Scott, Wilma Banks, Bernice Ballew, Marian Walker, Winifred Hall.

G. H. S. Orchestra

MR. RUSSELL, Director

Roger Shaw, President

James Hawkinson, Librarian

The orchestra program during the past year has been to develop a foundation for the future. Junior orchestras were organized at Lombard, Hitchcock, and Central, in addition to classes for the instruction of those interested in orchestra work.

The instrumentation has been increased by the acquisition of bass viols, cellos, violas, and tympani.

The annual senior orchestra concert presented at the high school auditorium on April 8, was a fine program, showing the effect of proper instrumentation and serious practice. This group also appeared at "Skidding", "Apple-sauce", and "Cabbages".

Big Nine Debate

Again this year, through the efforts of the coaches, each member of the Big Nine Debate squad received the opportunity of engaging in one out-of-town practice debate. In this manner the coaches were able to pick a very worthy team to represent Galesburg in the Big Nine. In Galesburg's triangle, according to the point scoring system, Galesburg won over Kewanee and Moline, thus winning the conference debate championship. This year the squad contained a sophomore debate team, assuring Galesburg of great possibilities in future forensic activities.

Club Debates

After much deliberation the club debaters decided to use the same question as the Big Nine, which was—Resolved: That the several states should enact legislation providing for compulsory unemployment insurance.

Much enthusiasm among the clubs and students was created by the club debates, which waged hot and furious. An unusually large number were in attendance. The Lincolns were victorious this year with the Laurians second. The results are tabulated as follows:

Declamation

This year, the declamation team consisted of Natalie Sebastian, Dorothy Millikin, Marjorie Mae Bobbitt, Jean Fuhr, Ethel Margaret Gillmor, and Phyllis Williams. Unusual interest was shown in this phase of public speaking; consequently, the local tryouts were very closely contested. After much deliberation the judges awarded first place to Ethel Margaret Gillmor, second to Dorothy Millikin, and third to Phyllis Williams. Ethel Margaret represented us in the Big Nine contest on October 30, in Rock Island. She placed fifth with her reading, "White Hands of Telham".

Oratory

A new system of elimination was inaugurated in the boys' oratorical competition this year and thirty-five tried out. From this group there was chosen a team composed of Francis Showalter, Robert Terpening, William Hinckley, William Daugherty, Clarence Hubbard, Grant Harnest. Francis Showalter was selected as our representative in the Big Nine Contest with Robert Terpening as alternate. "Franny" received fourth place in this contest which was held in Canton on December fourth.

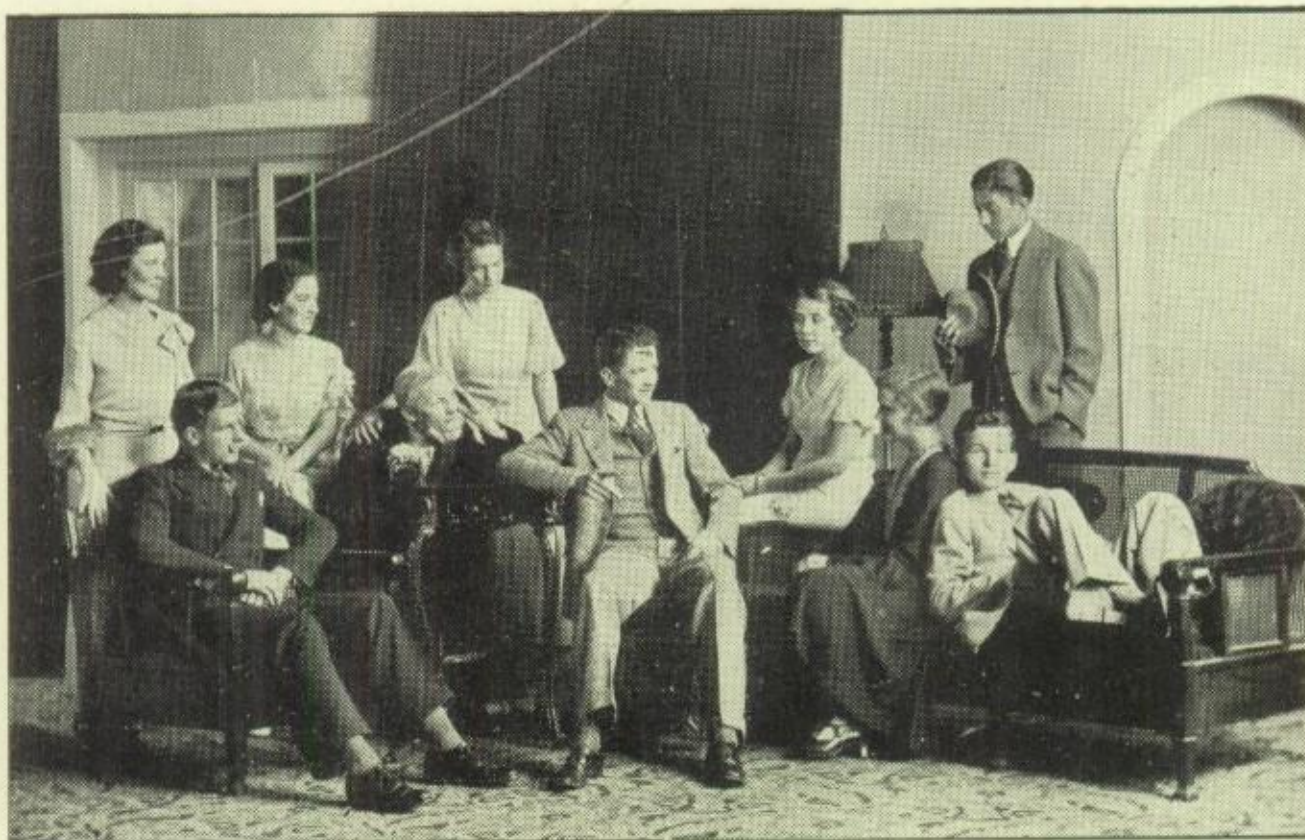

Extempore

From the number of boys who first showed interest in extemporaneous speaking, all but five were eliminated in preliminary try-outs before advisory groups.

Roger Shaw, Tadd Wake, Harvey Young, Phil Johnson, and Alonzo Clay composed the chosen team. According to custom, topics were chosen from current numbers of the Literary Digest. Roger was the representative in the Big Nine Contest at Kewanee, April 22, in which he received fourth place.

Reading from left to right they are: back row, Ethel Margaret Gillmor, Roberta Short, Dorothy Millikin, Mary Louise Tanning, and Laird Swagert.

Expression Play

The trials and tribulations of the Hardy family as dramatized in the three-act play "Skidding", by Arviania Rouveral, were portrayed very vividly by the Expression Department under the directorship of Miss Funke.

Dorothy Millikin, as Marian Hardy, and Paul Pruett, as Wayne Trenton, portrayed very vividly the roles of the young daughter interested in politics and the rich young engineer. Aunt Milly, Mrs. Hardy, and Judge Hardy, the parts taken by Mary Louise Tanning, Deloris Hendrix, and William Gardner, respectively, alternately convulsed the audience with mirth and brought tears of sympathy to their eyes. Ethel Margaret Gillmor stepped into the role of Estelle Hardy Campbell and played the part of the young wife and mother with great skill. Myra Hardy Wilcox, played by Roberta Short, successfully interested the audience. Mr. Stubbins' attempt to manage Judge Hardy's campaign was tempestuously acted by Laird Swagert. John Shenaut amused the group by his adolescent antics as Andy Hardy, while Glade Wilcox, as Grandpa Hardy, made a character not to be forgotten soon.

FEATURES

Treasures

My happiness is but a coin
 I drop within my treasure box;
 No other knows where it is hid,
 Nor could they ever break the locks.

You never can take treasure out
 Unless you put it in, I guess;
 So that's the reason why, I now
 Am saving coins of happiness.

Stanley Langley, '34.

Sweet Peas

Pink and red, purple and blue,
 Sweet peas of every living hue,
 Nod on the wall in the rendezvous,

Or tremble on the garden fence.
 At playing tag they make pretense
 And tumble round with impudence.

I'd rather watch their bright ballets,
 That last through all the balmy days,
 Than pick sweet peas for my bouquets.

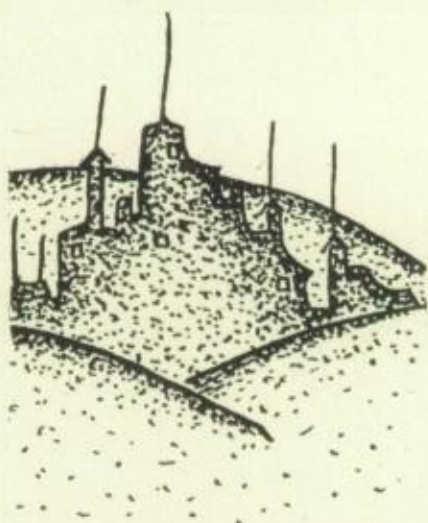

Elizabeth Gossage, '34.

Marionettes

Diminutive actors just so high,
 Who live human lives in miniature,
 Exist in a world that's just their size,
 And mimic adults in ways demure.

There Lilliputs of foreign land,
 Portray with grace a fairy ring,
 But when the Brobdignags appear,
 The dreams of romance all take wing.

Harry McClurg, '33.

Dune Thoughts

The open desert lay before my eyes!
A vista unrelieved by growing things,
Only sand hills white and pure and clear.
They looked as if some human hand had shaped
And molded in the sand the castles, towns,
And fortresses. It seemed some giant child
Had played until the twilight neared and then
Had skipped away to spend the night in dreams.

But Indian legends say to me, "Not so!
No child has caused these wondrous dunes to be;
No mortal ever lived who could excell
The work of long-dead Manitou who comes
To earth on windy nights to play again in glee
Upon the sand pile of the desert fair."

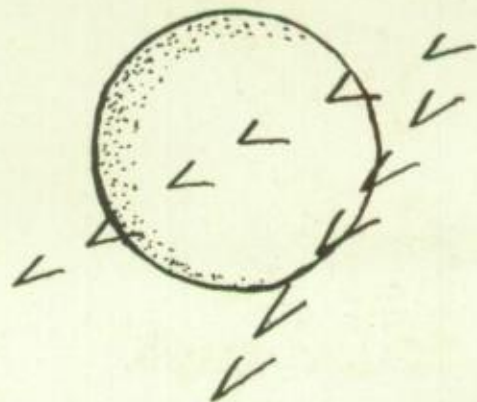

William Daugherty, '33.

Indian Lullaby

Where the sun smiles,
Little One,
Hawks fly swifter,
Winds approach, arrows rise,
Night ascends fast—fast on the trail
To where the sun smiles,
Little One.

June Goldsberry, '33.

Heat

Mile upon mile of flat, seemingly limitless desert space; the sun mercilessly, oppressively beating down upon the already baked and parched sand; a train rolling along amid a veritable cloud of dust; white pillowcases on the Pullmans covered with soot and dirt; passengers lolling drowsily on the observation car or stretching out in their berths; a porter lazily getting off at a station where a few people stroll slowly about in a so-called park among a few scraggly trees and flowers which droop in sickly fashion; a heavy and dull stillness permeating everything as if all nature were afraid to breathe because of the heat of this summer day in Arizona.

Kenneth Munson, '33.

Washington

Indomitable spirit,
 With brain in control,
 A quiet humble heart,
 In a big generous soul;
 Strong featured countenance,
 With steel sparks for eyes,
 With honest sincerity
 He won his allies.
 With no special planet,
 And horoscope unknown;
 He himself was the star,
 So brightly he shown.
 This man, George Washington
 Was courageous and true;
 Patriot of his flag
 The red, white and blue.

Lorraine Craver, '32.

War

Ruthless destroyer of souls,
 Merciless slayer of courageous men,
 Your iron maw is fed
 With man's art, courage, and pride.
 You are the threatener of civilization;
 You rend and tear and force
 Your way into the very souls
 Of mighty men, whose empty bodies
 You leave, as the receding tide
 Forgets shells on the sands.

Clyde Robbins, '33.

DESTRUCTION

The fire will soon die
 Leaving the black, shadowy ghosts
 Of pines once draped green.

RECOVERY

Nature will rebuild
 Her temples of lovely green
 And forget old scars.

Mildred Anderson, '34.

PLAYFULNESS

Trees with leaves like burning spangles
Shout to the winds a welcome wild,
"Come and toss me in your arms,
As a father does his child."

Lavonne Sprout, '33.

THE WOODS

I love the woods, and flowers, too,
Within the tree-ful wall;
I'm sad to see such damage done
When woodsmen make them fall.

Russell Mullen, '34.

A Spring

Once, one April day, I found a cold, transparent little spring. Its joyful voice spoke of happiness in its murmuring little melody of mirth. I lay on an emerald velvet rug of freshly sprouted grass and watched the pretty pictures painted on the luminous mirror of the water. At times birds flew by with azure heavens for a background. The jewels at the bottom of the pond were sparkling, shining stars of ruby, pearl, and topaz. All day long the boisterous, bubbling little spring played and danced the time away, singing to the breeze, "Happy, be happy!"

Richard Arnold, '33.

PORTRAIT OF A BOY WRITING

The mellow rays of a yellow parchment shade encompassed this picture:

A forlorn little masculine figure bending over a table—
His feet amazingly entangled with the legs of his chair,

His tongue laboriously cleaning a radius about his mouth,

His brow as corrugated as the dirty corduroy trousers he wore,

His freckled nose wrinkled like a perplexed rabbit,
One grimy fist desperately clutching a shock of sandy hair,

The other closed over a stubby end of a pencil
As it vigorously scratched a sheet of soiled paper.

Jean Fuhr, '33.

MORNING GLORY GEYSER

One little pool among a thousand other things
Is more beautiful to me than all the rest.
They call it "Morning Glory", and 'tis well named,
For its molten-sapphire waters, gently bubbling,
Are held by a vari-colored horn
Much like its fragile, waxen namesake;
And the faint mist arising from its crater-deep-seething
Is a perfume for the gods on high Olympus.

Frank C. Irwin, '32.

"THE BEACON LIGHT"

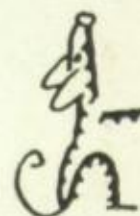

A straight narrow light,
Points to far heavens:
It speaks a sign language to bird men.

A cone shaped flash,
Takes ten ticks of eternity,
To draw its halo outward.
Ten ticks seem a long time.
To a man facing death.

Some there are who hate the circling light;
They would rather read in the morning paper:
"Aviator killed last night in forced landing."

But still a pointing finger of spiral light
Breaks luminous in the darkness,
Always circling—circling—
Circling—

The Ballad of William David Uppidee

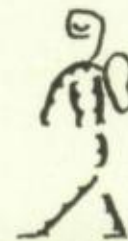

Young William David Uppidee
Was ever a man to smile;
But O! a man and a half was he
Beneath that simple guile.

The Great American Desert Land,
With all its thirst and heat,
To him was just a pile of sand.
Now wouldn't that be sweet!

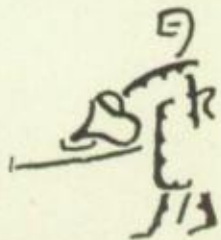

So William David Uppidee
Just left the folks behind,
Betook himself out West, you see,
Out there for gold to mine.

He slung his knapsack on his back
And walked with easy strides;
He started on the Westward track
Successfully bumming rides.

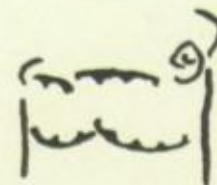

He traveled thus for mile on mile
In elegant hitch-hike mode.
He stopped at an inn to rest awhile—
'Twas tiresome on the road.

His shoes were full of boulders big;
His brow was caked with grime;
They say he ate just like a pig—
Five mouthfuls at a time.

The landlord filled the flowing bowl;
Bill quaffed it in one gulp.
He licked his chops like Old King Cole
And cried, "Bring on the duck!"

He ate till even he could eat
Nary a wee bit more;
He went to bed with shoes on his feet;
Then he began to snore.

So loud he snored it shook the house;
It tottered, swayed, and crashed
A-down upon Sir Mickey Mouse,
Reducing him to hash.

But William David Uppidee
Did not at first awaken;
Because he weighed three hundred three—
Was not the least bit shaken.

Pictures

"Please don't look so solemn—
Now, that's better—there!"
Says the photographer,
"Don't move now—don't dare!"

It's hard to sit "just so"—
And look your very best;
'Sides, your "proofs" always seem—
Worse than all the rest.

Still, I guess it's worth it—
When we get "The Book"—
To see our pictures in it—
No matter how we look.

THRIFT...

Builds character, leads to happiness, contentment, and independence, while extravagance, if persisted in, tends to lower the standard of character and leads to restlessness, discontent, disappointment, sorrow and, in many cases, to poverty.

If this is so, then there isn't a student in our High School who can afford to deny thrift right of way in his life.

The morning was balmy and clear;
One knew that spring was near
The grass was soft and green
The loveliest I had ever seen.

Oh, horrors! A bumble bee!
I said, "How-do you do."
He said, "Here's how I greet you—"
There was no mistake about his greeting
For the present, I stand as in prayer meeting.

Who owns the Utilities

In more than one sense, the electric light and power company is a public utility.

Its work is performed under the public eye. Its rates are controlled by state or local regulation. Statements in detail of its transactions are filed with and subjected to examination by governmental agencies, and are open to public inspection. Their securities are owned by practically the whole people of the United States. Their bonds are the property of savings banks, trust companies and commercial institutions, life, fire and fiduciary insurance companies. Any depositor in a bank, or anyone who owns, or is a beneficiary under an insurance policy, has a direct interest in their growth.

A Successful Annual

- A successful year book is one that expresses the spirit of the school by translating in book form the individual ideas of the annual staff and the recording of outstanding events of the school year.
- This annual expresses the spirit of Galesburg High School, and embodies the ideals of the staff of "The Reflector" through its pleasing makeup, fine typography, excellent printing, and attractive binding, all of which goes to make this a most successful book.
- The personal service and hearty co-operation of all those having to do with the mechanical and editorial production of this book has made it a very attractive annual.

Senior Play

"The Yellow House had open house", when the 1932 senior class play, "Mother Carey's Chickens", was presented at the Plaza Theater, June 3, under the direction of Miss Carolyn Funke.

It was easy to realize that "home" was the keynote of the entire production, because the pleasant homelike scenes, devised by Miss Belshaw, scenery make-up manager, and her two assistants, William Hanlon, student property manager, and Richard Dickerson, student scenery make-up manager. The action was 'round the merry hearth of the Yellow House, which fairly radiated a warm glow into the hearts of all those about.

In the center of this glow rose Mother Carey, the ever-understanding one, portrayed by Mary Louise Tanning, whose "chickens" clustered around her. Nancy Carey, the pathfinder of the family and "mother's right hand man", was played by Ethel Margaret Gillmor, whose comforting cheerfulness combined with the lovable-ness of Kathleen, characterized by Wanda Taber, the business ability of Gilbert, played by Robert Terpening, and the playful childishness of Peter, acted by John Cline Barker, made the children of Mother Carey a happy and joyful group. The haughty cousin Julia Carey, interpreted by Beth Wood, was a disturbing, but later unifying addition to the family.

A second family, the Pophams, was an element of mirth throughout the entire play. The optimist, Ossian Popham, portrayed by Roger Shaw, added worthwhile philosophy as well as comedy bits to the play. The crude kindness of his wife, Maria, interpreted by Margaret Reese, and the stolidness of his daughter, Lallie Joy, played by Frances Bergstrom, contributed to the humor found in the Yellow House.

Henry Lord, Ph.D., portrayed by Glade Wilcox, and his son, Cyril, played by Gene White, comprised a third family where misunderstanding caused difficulties until Mother Carey's intervention.

A brusk, efficient person was Cousin Ann Chadwick, taken by Helen Scharfenberg, whose inborn love of management tried to change the system of things at the Yellow House.

Ralph Thurston, acted by Robert Hieronymus, the ambitious country school master, added another cheerful presence to the fireside at the Carey house, as did Tom Hamilton, characterized by Richard McLaughlin. An ancient brick oven in the Yellow House complicated the friendship of that young man and Nancy Carey.

Spring Fever

I sit slumped down and all forlorn,
As I gaze out on the sunlit morn.
Like a prisoner whose term has just begun;
I wish I had my freedom won.

Many a times I've often wondered,
Why I must stay in room two-hundred.
When I want to wander out the door
And search the park for natural lore.

I gaze with envy across the street,
And wonder how I may retreat.
Though I might escape Miss Ryin;
My freedom would require some flyin'.

But after all I do recall,
I shan't attempt escape at all;
Though my thoughts are very eager,
After all it's just Spring Fever.

The Ballad of William David Uppidee

When morning came, he did awake
And, yelling bloody murder,
He cut himself a hunk of cake
And eloped with the inn-keeper's daughter.

Alas and alack for our hero bold
And his winsome bride-to-be,
For pa got mad when he was told
And stopped the match, you see.

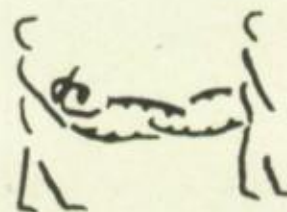

But Bill escaped by submarine
And recommenced his search.
He pitched his camp two hills between
And washed for gold the dirt.

By luck he struck the purest vein
"Ye iver saw, be thunder!"
With sticks of gold he staked his claim,
Which was an awful blunder.

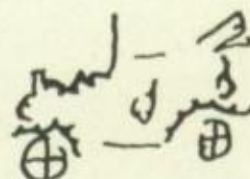

One night when Bill was sleeping sound,
Along came Mike the Red.
He pulled the stakes out of the ground
And socked Bill on the head.

But Bill sprang up and yelled with heat,
"For better, bad, or worse!"
Mike heard the birdie sing, "Tweet, tweet"—
They put him in the hearse.

So William David Uppidee
Went on and worked his claim;
He worked so hard he finally
A millionaire became.

He bought a Ford and lots of noise
For only ninety cents;
He eased it back toward Illinois
And multiplied the dents.

But overall the Ford was small
While Uppidee was not;
He drove it by remote control
While by the side he'd trot.

At last he reached the old home town
The people only stared;
They thought he was a crazy clown
And not a millionaire.
